Quantum Computing Industry Group Update

Chinese Market Update

A Weekly Follow-up of current stock positions

Quantum Computing Industry Group Update

Yesterday, in premarket trading, I sold my remaining Rigetti Computing (RGTI) position above the fifth Fibonacci target of 5.11, with a 97.3% gain. I took the profits as soon as possible, as regular trading hours indicated a high of 5.09 before it started to pull back.

I also sold my remaining Quantum Computing (QUBT) shares, retesting its second Fibonacci target with a 33.7% gain.

Even though I sold my quantum computing stocks yesterday, I will look for the next opportunity to repurchase. As measured by the Defiance Quantum ETF (QTUM), the entire group ran to the 1.618 Fibonacci expansion from the base that began on July 16 and is highly overbought. However, over the past few weeks, the accumulation in QTUM has increased to new all-time highs, indicating that the move is not over.

Once the retracement is complete, more emerging leaders should offer new opportunities.

Chinese Market Update

Yesterday, I sold the remaining shares of my Chinese small-cap ATRenew (RERE) with a 26.4% gain. The stock came close to its third Fibonacci target at 3.73.

However, RERE was being held back by its anchored VWAP. I saw strong opposition from the Anchored VWAP that kept shares from hitting its next Fibonacci target, forcing me to take my profits early.

I continue holding my other Chinese small-cap FinVolution (FINV) and Youdao (DAO) positions.
